Description

Rectangular Lewis and Clark Bicentennial Commemorative journal kept by members of the Rooney Corps of Rediscovery (members of the Rooney Family). Paper covers are printed to mimic leather and have printed text identifying the journal. Interior of front and back covers have green marbled paper. Title page has publisher information. Following pages have Lewis and Clark Expedition history, maps, illustrations, and excerpts from the explorers' journals. Following pages have two handwritten journal entries by two different members of the Rooney Family. The first entry documents the family's experience dining with Native Americans in Billings, Montana on June 26 and visiting Little Bighorn. The second entry was written by Mary Rooney, Age 11, on June 28, 2003, and documents her experience meeting "Indians" and learning about their cultural practices including "The Sweat;" this entry is accompanied by a handdrawn depiction of this practice. Mary Rooney's entry is two-pages and is detached from the journal proper, but stored within the journal after the first entry. The remaining pages are blank or feature excerpts from Lewis and Clark's journals.
