Description

Oil painting on canvas depicting East Liberty. Nearly square. Painting consists of five winter scenes.

Surrounding the scenes is a light blue background with

Painted designs and text. Top left exterior scene depicts a church in the background, lamppost in top left corner, bus and smoking man in bottom left corner, pedestrians in the bottom right corner, and a shoe store sign in the top right corner. Top center exterior scene depicts people underneath three white triangular-topped shelters with buildings in the background. Top right exterior scene depicts a multi-story building with stylized snowflakes in the top two corners, two pedestrians and two dogs in the foreground, and cars driving in the bottom right corner. Right center scene depicts the interior of a store during an after-Christmas sale with green and red garlands hanging from the ceiling. Bottom exterior scene depicts people standing underneath six white triangular-topped shelters with commercial buildings in the background and three people in the foreground. Painted artist signature in bottom right corner of bottom scene. Sides of canvas are unpainted. Reverse of canvas has handwritten text along top stretcher and along left stretcher near top left corner (when looking at reverse). Wooden stretcher. Canvas is attached to stretcher with metal staples. Reverse has two metal eyebolts with metal wire strung between for hanging.
